Summary:

Diana Pazaitova has been Managing Partner of Fama Consulting since its incorporation in 2009 offering services in the field of public affairs, parliamentary advocacy and government relations. Fama Consulting is affiliate for Bulgaria for FTI Consulting, an independent global business advisory firm with locations in 28 countries on six continents. Diana avails of long-standing local expertise and international client experience, and is expert in gathering and interpreting political and business information. Diana provides unbiased interpretation and analysis of public policy and regulatory developments, and assesses how these might affect operational or investment plans. Areas of service currently cover financial services, transport, pharma, Big Tech, tobacco industry, mining and automobile waste recovery and utilisation, bottled water industry, food vouchers, energy generation, etc. Diana maintains a well-established network of politicians, policy makers, public servants, and business, media and NGO community representatives. She holds a Master's degree in English language from Sofia University, in addition to specialised training in public affairs, public relations and government communication strategies (in Bulgaria and the US). In 2017 she finished the PricewaterhouseCoopers mini MBA programme.

Diana has been sitting on the Board of Directors of BBBA for two years where – together with the rest of the Board members – she is committing her efforts towards enhancing the visibility, influence, and effectiveness of the Association. Assisting the work of several BBBA committees and events conceptualisation, she consistently promotes the principles of transparency and accountability.

She is also part of the Board of the Ladies Forum, which is a nonprofit organisation gathering women in senior management positions in large companies or who are successfully developing their own business. The Forum is a platform for sharing experiences and ideas, as well as supporting future women leaders through special initiatives. Diana is responsible for the development of a database for professional women who are eligible for executive and non-executive corporate positions in order to enhance merit-based professional women presence in board rooms and help secure gender diversity.

Furthermore, Diana used to sit on the Board of Directors of AmCham where she was also co-chair of the AmCham Public Affairs Committee. In this capacity she focused her activities in assisting the resolution of policy issues with practical relevance to the membership. The list includes developing opinions and position papers as well as actively advocating on behalf of the organisation in front of public institutions (parliament, government officials) and forums for measures and legislative acts in diverse areas.

From 2005 to 2008 Diana was Managing Director of Candole Partners Bulgaria which was a part of Candole Partners Ltd. – a leading independent public affairs and strategy consultancy firm with offices across Central and Southeast Europe. Campaigns for clients included parliamentary lobbying, political analyses and advice, concession negotiations, market entry analyses, etc., primarily in the fields of heavy industry, mining, energy and utility service sector. Earlier she worked as Programme Manager in public education and public relations for several USAID-financed projects where she cooperated closely with government ministries and other central and regional government agencies, major financial institutions, private companies and NGO's, industry associations, sociological agencies and opinion-forming think tanks.

Diana also sat on the board of the Bulgarian PR Society. Currently, she is a founding member and member of the Managing Board of the Bulgarian Association of Public Affairs Specialists. She is also a member of the Public Affairs Community of Europe (PACE). Diana is a senior lecturer at the Technical University of Sofia where she has published a textbook, among other activities.
